

Will Welcome King and Queen In All Canada

Was Released By Agriculture
And The Press

The visit of Their Majesty, our King and Queen, to Canada, scheduled to take place in May, 1939, is of far more import, and may be made to exert a more powerful influence on our National life than any event of recent times if we but make the most of it.

Symbolizing, as His Majesty does, the spirit of those ideals that characterize for people the world over, His is the one personality to whom Canadians regard as of race, politics, tongue or creed, may pay their homage. His is the one figure about whom all Britishers may really particularly wish in this time of trouble and confusion.

So, while we inevitably would all delight in welcoming Their Majesty, let us not fail to make the occasion serve its fundamental purpose—to wipe away these petty differences that now divide us, and to demonstrate in the display in our devotion to the Crown, that Canadians from coast to coast are a united and inseparable people; that in the person of His Majesty we have a common tie that not only binds us to each other but to our British kith and kin the world over.

We should not let the occasion pass with but a colourful and heartfelt welcome. We should make of it a time of spiritual awakening, a time for impressing on the many, just what the office of British Kingship has come to symbolize.

It is quite obvious that Their Majesty will be able to visit but few points in the West, but we suggest, their brief stay in the Province should be observed by spiritual and patriotic exercises in every community in the Province. In the organization of such Provincial wide observances we respectfully suggest that each local authority in the Province prepare to organize an observance period, and that the occasion be not allowed to pass without impressing on all people its deep significance.

HOW NOT TO BUILD A TOWN

Look at every stranger you meet on the street as if he were an interloper and should be investigated by the police.

When a new family comes to town be sure to have nothing to do with them until they have been around long enough to find out all about them socially, financially, religiously etc.

Do not ever welcome a stranger into your town until you find out that he is well rated in the commercial agencies.

Be sure that his political opinions are just like yours.

Never receive the stranger's family socially, until after you find out that the wife's great-grandpa can be traced to the Four Hundred.

Be certain that the new comers are members of your church denomination; otherwise—they are no good.

Never buy anything from local merchant that you can get by driving 100 miles away and buy at a higher price.

Send your cash away from town and ask the merchant to "charge it." They'll gladly accommodate you that way.

If you would by chance visit a local store, and not find the article exactly as you want it, though nearly so, send your order to a mail order house.

Say just as many disparaging things about your neighbors as you can. They'll be it and be sure to return your compliments at the first opportunity.

Build up a personal reputation for interfering with other people's affairs. Soon everybody will be flocking to you to learn all about what's going on in your flourishing town. You know everybody loves a gossip.

Always put yourself and your affairs first. The rights of other people are not to be considered.

Never pay a just debt you may owe until your creditor starts talking about suing you. Then when that starts, cut him out and tell everybody how small the fellow is. He just wants to pester you.

Always criticize as much as you can, the town's officials and their official acts. That makes them love you all the more.

Organize a little close communion club, hand pick the members and then snuff at outsiders who are trying to do things on their own instead of offering your hearty co-operation.

Yeah, that's not the way to build a bigger and better town.

It is reported from some sections of this province, that farmers of Western Canada will suffer little as a result of the removal of the six-cent prefer on Canada wheat in United Kingdom Market.

A'lberta Wheat Pool Started 15 Years Ago

25,000 Farmers' Had Signed To Deliver Their Wheat

Just fifteen years ago on last Saturday, the Alberta Wheat Pool started business. For 2 months before on energetic campaign had been conducted throughout the province and more than 25,000 farmers, farming over 2,500,000 acres, had signed contracts to deliver their wheat to the pool. In that first year the Alberta Pool handled more than 34,000,000 bushels of wheat.

The success of the Pool was made possible by the efforts of the United Farmers of Alberta, led by H. W. Wood, their president, and first president of the Alberta Wheat Pool.

Radio Jottings

Christmas Comes but Once a Year

Christmas is just about a month away, but already your talks at home are thinking in terms of holly, green and red ribbons, and Christmas trees, and the kids are washing more frequently behind the ears.

Getting Ice Ready For Skating Rink

Number of fine Electric Lights
Have Been Put Up

The recent colder weather has made it possible to give the new rink several floodings. A good foundation of ice has now been secured and it will be a matter of only a few days until a thin sheet of ice will be in readiness for the merry makers young and old.

A fine system of electric lighting has been installed which will add greatly to the appearance of the rink and to the enjoyment of its patrons.

We understand a goodly number of young people, both girls and boys have signified their desire to pay hockey, so doubtless there will be some good games during the winter.

Season tickets are now on sale at very reasonable prices for both individuals and families and may be secured from any member of the Committee.

Redcliff Couple Celebrate 25 Wedding Anniversary

Danish Friends Present Couple
With Arm Chair

The Danish people of town born here in full force upon Mr. and Mrs. Johansen on Wednesday evening Nov. 23rd to help them celebrate the 25th anniversary of their wedding.

The evening was spent playing cards, and having an enjoyable social time.

During the course of the evening the bride and groom of 25 years standing were presented with a handsome arm chair by their friends, who one and all wished them a continued long and happy married life.

Delicious and sumptuous refreshments were served and a delightful evening brought to a close.

The Review joins with their many friends in congratulations and good wishes to Mr. and Mrs. Johansen.

J. A. Kasser, 65 years of age, former of Moosemin, Sask. was found dead in a slough near St. Louis. He was a wealthy farmer. It was claimed he had had a considerable amount of money on his person just prior to the tragedy. When found he had no coat but there were four bullet wounds in his body.

Small Meeting Of Commerce Here Last Thursday

Want Citizens at next Meeting
On November 29th

A meeting of the local Chamber of Commerce was called for last Thursday evening and notice of same was sent out to a number of business men in town. Unfortunately only a few attended the meeting and of those, most were of the opinion that since so few were interested the organization should be disbanded.

A few however, were of the opinion that the Chamber of Commerce should be continued as it was thought improvements in both town and district could be realized through the efforts of such an organization.

It was finally decided that another meeting be called to take place on Nov. 29 in the Town Hall and that all interested in the welfare of the town and district be asked to be present.

If no greater interest is shown in this meeting, than in the last, no doubt the local Chamber of Commerce will be discontinued.

During the past several years, many important meetings held in Redcliff have been poorly attended. What is the matter? It was not always so. Nor is it so in other small towns.

Perhaps now that we have erected a Memorial to the Dead, we had better send another of the so-called living citizens of our town and inscribe thereon the words "Not Dead, but Sleeping".

Juvenile Hockey Team Organizes Tonight

Team Will Be Known As Campeau's Canadians

Number 24
A meeting of the juvenile hockey boys will be held at Campeau's Store this evening to complete the organization of the team.

Mr. Campeau has already secured the hockey box and sweaters for the lads. And are they classy! The colors are red, white and purple. The front of the sweater is adorned with a large C which stands for the eponymous sponsor's patronistic "Campeau's Canadians".

Mr. Campeau is arranging for a barbeque of Buffalo roast for the boys, which no doubt will give them that vim and vigor which will carry them to victory in the coming contests.

The Conservative association of Alberta is to have a provincial wide convention.

Memorials In Flanders

Mark Various Stages of Canadian Participation in Great War

The following article is by Capt. W. V. Murray, M.C., Canadian Press Staff writer. Eight memorials in memory of Canadian soldiers who died in their lives in the Great War are dotted over the battlefields of France and Belgium. All have been erected by the Canadian government and all are built in great haste by the memory of Canadian endeavor and Canadian sacrifice. These monuments to 10,000 dead in foreign soil were recalled in the celebration Nov. 11 of the 20th anniversary of the Armistice.

The most northerly of the memorials is at Passchendaele where, in a little park a simple slab of granite records that here the Canadian Corps fought and endured in the early winter of 1917. The form of this memorial has been transferred to others—those at Sanctuary Wood, in the Ypres-Battle, Courtrai, Dury, Le Commet and others.

Memorial of the baptism of fire of the 1st Canadian Contingent are preserved in the granite shaft, erected at St. Julien, about the middle of 1915. Out of the shaft comes the upper half of a bloodied soldier, his head bowed in misery, and the thousands whose blood reddened the fields of Flanders in the spring of 1915. One economy in this monument is remarked at once: The "brooding soldier" is steel-helmed. This type of headgear was not worn until early in 1918.

The Sanctuary Wood memorial commemorates the desperate battles fought in the Ypres Salient in June, 1918. The memorial at Courtrai, erected about a quarter of a mile south of the village of Arras, Albert-Battle Road, brings to mind the devastating battles of the Somme in September, October and November, 1916.

At Dury, half a mile north of the Arras-Cambrai Road, the memorial recalls the battles of Arras in 1917, and the breaking of the Drocourt-Queant Line. A few miles to the southeast, near the village of Le Commet, the most southerly village on the Western frontiers captured by the Canadians, the victory of Amiens on Aug. 8, 1918, is commemorated.

The most pretentious of all the war memorials is at Vimy Ridge, which towers above Vimy Ridge. It is all embracing, and all the emotions and purposes and hopes of Canada are expressed there in stone.

Twelve years of this "memorial" in the making. It was unveiled on Nov. 18, 1930, by King Edward VIII. (now Duke of Windsor) in the presence of the President of the French Republic and 6,000 British and Canadian men, their wives, and dependents of the fallen—pilgrims who had travelled to France for that purpose under the auspices of the Canadian Legion.

Fourth Largest Diamond

Placer Miner Claims To Have Found It In Brazil

What is said to be the world's fourth diamond in size has now been examined by Treasury experts at Rio de Janeiro.

Found in the State of Minas Gerais, it weighs 736.6 karats in the rough or six-tenths of a karat under the Jumbo diamond from Sierra Leone. It is a 60.4 karats under the estimated, rough weight of the Great Mogul, and is far below the size of the Cullinan.

It was named the President Vargas.

Brazil has originated another very large diamond, the Southern Star, the world's eleventh.

The new find was made by a placer miner. He sold the stone to an exporter and it will be sent to Amsterdam to be cut.

Had Grounds For Worry

A doctor was called in to attend an ill patient.

"The only thing I can prescribe for your complaint is hot, whiskey each day," he told his patient.

"But I'm afraid my housekeeper would object to that," said the patient. "She'd probably leave."

"The doctor looked thoughtful. 'I've got an idea,' he said at last. 'She need not know. Just tell her that you want some doctoring water!'

Some weeks later the doctor called at the house to inquire about his patient. He was met by a terrified housekeeper.

"Oh doctor," she quavered, "he's gone mad! The poor gentleman's drinking himself morning, noon and night."

Canada's Timber Wealth

Is Coming Dangerously Close To Road States The Dymond

Canada's timber wealth has been handled so waterfully that the people are coming to within sight of the edge," Dr. J. H. Dymond, director of the Royal Ontario Museum of Zoology, Toronto, said in an address to the annual meeting of the Association of Audition Societies in New York.

As active competitors in the lumber markets of the world, Dr. Dymond said, "some prophesy that, at the present rate of consumption and destruction, Douglas fir will be out of the picture in 35 years and white pine in 50."

"Scientifically the statement was made by many pulp and paper men today that about 10 years hence, they definitely will be worried about their sources of wood supply."

Dr. Dymond, speaking on Canadian conservation problems, said one of the most important problems at present is to bring about adoption of a forest policy that will ensure adequate supplies of timber and forest products on a sustained yield basis. At the same time, this policy must take into account the other functions of a forest for fresh growth during the winter months. The procedure is explained in a circular issued by the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

"On the maintenance of forest cover also depends the preservation of animal life which finds its home in the forest, and to a considerable extent, too, the preservation of conditions necessary for fish life in lakes and streams," Dr. Dymond said.

Dr. Dymond stated some authorities believe the forests have already been eliminated from Canadian wild life, and that the future of the forest is in a dangerous position. He said that the "brooding soldier" is steel-helmed. This type of headgear was not worn until early in 1918.

Dr. Dymond said: "The pioneer to destroy the forest and to take much of the habitat for farms and towns. But he did not see, and we as people do not yet see, that there is a limit beyond which we cannot go in clearing the land (destruction of nature) without bringing ruin to ourselves."

Dancing To Swing Music

Hopping, Glimmering Dances Had For The Health, Says Doctor

Dancing to swing music causes sluggish mind and thick ankles, according to Dr. E. A. Ward, immediate past president of the American Osteopathic Association, in an interview. Dr. Ward was attending the Michigan convention of the association at Detroit.

"The hysteria for swing music and the hopping, glimmering dances, as it goes with it," Dr. Ward warned, "will pay no attention to the fact that it is a broken maladjusted feet, and an exhausted nervous system. Unless they recognize its dangers."

"The apple uses many different muscles, putting them to a strain and strain for which, in most cases, they are not prepared. These dances are violent exercises, and require as much training and as good physical condition as tennis, basketball, swimming, golf and similar sports."

If a person wishing to dance the swing, Dr. Ward advised, the heart should be tested, muscles should be gradually conditioned and regular care given to the body. He said the dances are throwbacks to the war and religious dances of primitive tribes.

Public Dinners

Earl Baldwin Considers These Functions As Very These

Earl Baldwin in his rare, formal appearances in public life shows he regarded as prime minister made a few blunt remarks about public dinners.

He told the Westcoastshire Association, at whose dinner he presided in London, that they were "the most thing functions there are."

"I was a fine, healthy man when I first took office and I leave it a wreck," he said. "I think public speaking is at the bottom of it."

Lord Baldwin said: "I am never going to any more public dinners except the county associations."

"Has your wife met with an accident?"

"No. Why?"

"Well, what's that pad over her eye?"

"That's her new hat."

Attractive Trade Mark

Goos For In Selling Canadian Canned Goods In China

Canadian canned fruits and vegetables are well liked in Hong Kong and Canadian exporters are aware that an important feature of the Hong Kong and South China market is the value placed on an attractive brand or trade mark, or as the Chinese call it "choy".

"On the maintenance of forest cover also depends the preservation of animal life which finds its home in the forest, and to a considerable extent, too, the preservation of conditions necessary for fish life in lakes and streams," Dr. Dymond said. ## The Power Of Music

Is International Music Dr. Dymond

Dr. Dymond, director of the Royal Ontario Museum of Zoology, Toronto, said in an address to the annual meeting of the Association of Audition Societies in New York. As active competitors in the lumber markets of the world, Dr. Dymond said, "some prophesy that, at the present rate of consumption and destruction, Douglas fir will be out of the picture in 35 years and white pine in 50."

WARSHIPS IN THE MAKING

Growing Winter Rhubarb

Supply Can Be Forced In Cellar For Fresh Growth

A supply of fresh rhubarb stalks may be made available from January to the following spring by forcing in the cellar for fresh growth during the winter months. The procedure is explained in a circular issued by the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

A few good sized crowns or pieces cut off the plants in the garden will furnish enough forced stalks for a family. As the crowns or plants which have received the necessary nourishment during the season, it is not necessary to plant them in soil in the cellar, although this may be the most convenient material to use to put the plants, as the roots must be kept moist for best results.

The roots are dug up just before winter sets in and before being put in the cellar they are left out to freeze solid. An exposure to frost from five to ten weeks is desirable, as roots force more quickly afterwards if they have been frozen. Most of the plants are sent down together in the cellar, either in boxes or on the floor. They may remain in total, or almost total, darkness while being forced, as without light the colour of the rhubarb is a very attractive shade of pinkish red.

The one lot of plants will continue to throw up stalks for six weeks or two months, or until the roots are exhausted. To ensure a continuous supply, some roots may be kept frozen and not put in the warm cellar until stalks from the first lot are ready for use. The temperature in the cellar should not be high. Between 50 to 60 degrees Fahrenheit is a good range, and rhubarb will force at even lower temperature, though more slowly.

Bring Story To Life

"Stand-Up" Pictures Illustrate Book On Life Of Christ

"Long ago, when Rome was a mighty Empire under Caesar Augustus, and Judea, the country of the Jews, was one of its provinces, there dwelt in the little village of Nazareth, hidden away among the hills of Galilee, a carpenter named Joseph, and his wife, a gentle maiden named Mary."

So begins "The Story of Jesus," the most wonderful story in the world. Throughout the book, author, Lucy Hudson Brown, secretary of the Royal Society of Literature, keeps the same high standard of writing. The story is consecutive. As much as possible of the chronology of the Authorized Version has been preserved.

As the story progresses, unforgettable episodes in Christ's life spring from the pages in full-colour "stand-up" pictures. These tableaux are the work of Eileen Watts. Beautifully conceived and executed they bring the story to life.

The Bishop of London, among other eminent religious leaders, praises "The Story of Jesus." In his foreword he writes: "I commend this book to the attention of parents and teachers."

Plenty In A Name

Being Donald Duck Not Much Fun Says Real Boy

Martin, kindly of York, Dimmy, a 13-year-old London boy, his name is Donald Duck. He has bought a pair of boxing gloves to help him drive down his name.

"It's not much fun being Donald Duck," he said. "All the boys at school used to run after me shouting, 'Quick, quick,' and there was always a lot of laughter when the teacher called out my name."

"But now I have my boxing gloves and have taken a few new lessons, and they are afraid to tease me so much."

Would Be Too Slow

A Destructive Practice

All Vegetation Requires Fertilizer Contained In Leaves We Burn

All over the country in the autumn the leaves fall from the trees in millions of tons are burned as the convenient way to dispose of them. But considerable quantities of cultural chemicals were used in this one of the most destructive practices that have come into vogue with modern civilization. The leaves that we are burning up in these autumn bonfires represent a large percentage of the nutrition that is kept gathered from the soil and the air to nourish the trees and it ought to be returned to the earth to as great a degree as is possible.

In the natural forests the leaves have been falling under the trees for ages and forming a mould that is rich in its capacity to produce vegetation.

In the cities especially, the wasteful disposal of autumn leaves is colossal. The great majority of citizens resort to this extravagant practice, but they do not realize the value of the asset they are destroying. They have not had a study of plant life and they would know that the trees and other vegetation require this natural fertilizer to maintain their life and growth. The leaves that we are burning are destroying the food of all the trees and plants and they ought to feel the criminals robbing helpless nature.

The story of the leaves is a long one but the point about this burning is that it is a study of plant life. When householders have gone to the trouble of raising up leaves, the leaves are left to rot. In the course of time you have a quantity of fertilizer that will make the garden gladden. Some home and gardeners are so stupid that they burn the leaves as soon as they are gathered. In the course of time you have a quantity of fertilizer that will make the garden gladden. Some home and gardeners are so stupid that they burn the leaves as soon as they are gathered. In the course of time you have a quantity of fertilizer that will make the garden gladden. ## To Resist Disease

The Question Of Diet Appears To Be An Important Factor

A Rochester foundation scientist declared that correct eating is as important as heredity in the ability of a person to resist disease. Many persons have a natural resistance to infection acquired from their parents. Dr. Charles Church, director of the foundation's nutrition fund, declared, while others succumb readily to tuberculosis, colds, rheumatism, diabetes, and a host of other diseases.

It is becoming apparent, however, that the right diet in infancy and childhood is just as important, if not more so, than the factor of heredity in building up disease resistance. Dr. Church and the American Public Health Association.

In experiments on mice infected with the bacteria responsible for typhoid, which causes food poisoning, it was found that an optimum diet would protect both the mother mouse and her children to a high degree, even to the third and fourth generations. If the diet were continued, he reported.

"The protection thus afforded lasted at least until maturity was reached in all the experiments. And progressive improvement took place for at least three generations on the same diet," Dr. Church said, adding that "the influence of diet upon resistance may thus be on a par with the influence of heredity."

Inclusion of mineral salts in the diet is apparently just as important as including vitamins, he added. When the quantity of these elements was reduced to one-fourth the normal in one group of mice, the number of deaths increased four times. And when the amount of calcium, the essential element for forming bones and teeth and promoting body metabolism was reduced to one-fifth of normal the fatality rate increased five times when exposed to infection.
